A replacement span for Eggners Ferry Bridge was lifted into place Tuesday after being transported 30 miles Monday through Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake.

The 322-foot span was assembled at the Eddyville Riverport and began its journey to the bridge site around 12:30 p.m. Monday. It was transported using a three-barge flotilla, which also carried two cranes needed to move the span once it arrived.

Post takes action to prevent suicide

Army to embed mental health experts in brigades, Gen. says

BY CARLA JIMENEZ
NEW ERA STAFE WRITER

Maj. Gen. James C. McConville, the commander of the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault) announced Monday that Fort Campbell will embed a staff of mental health professionals on post to give soldiers greater access to mental health services.

McConville said the move is part of a preventative health initiative for the 101st. The staff will consist of 13 counselors, nurses, psychiatrists and physicians. They will be embedded in offices within the 4th Brigade Combat Team. The plan for the 101st Airborne Division is to eventually embed similar staffs in the other brigades.

Fort Carson, Colo., was the first Army post to utilize this model, and Col. Paul Cordts, commander for Blanchfield Army Community Hospital, said the embedded staff model on post emulates how soldiers access mental health services while deployed. Behavioral health professionals are stationed overseas at forward operating bases, where they live and work with soldiers every day.

"That's proven to be a very effective model in combat, where the behavioral health professionals are immediately accessible to soldiers, immediately accessible to the chain of command," Cordts said. "And so the idea is that we'll reproduce that model back here in garrison."

The first staff will be embedded with the 4th brigade, Cordts said, because it has been aggressively building resilience in its soldiers and family members by adopting a comprehensive soldier fitness model.

"We think this embedded behavioral health model will complement their efforts to build resiliency nicely," he said.

One of the goals of the embedded behavioral health model is to prevent suicides. The easy access is designed to encourage soldiers to seek help before it's too late.

Army opens jobs in combat battalions to women

BY KRISTIN M. HALL THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Female soldiers this week are moving into new jobs in once allmale units as the Army breaks down formal barriers in recognition of what has already happened in wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The policy change announced earlier this year is being tested at nine brigades, including one at Fort Campbell, before going Army-wide. It opens thousands of jobs to female soldiers by loosening restrictions meant to keep them away from the battlefield. Experience on the ground in the past decade showed women were fighting and dying alongside male soldiers anyway.

Col. Val Keaveny Jr., commander of the 4th Brigade Combat Team that is among units piloting the change, told The Associated Press that for the last decade it has been common to have women temporarily attached to the combat units and serve alongside them.

W. Ky. middle school counselor fatally shot

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) - Police in western Kentucky are investigating the fatal shooting of a woman who worked as a counselor in a middle school.

Henderson police told The Gleaner that 39-yearold Michelle Lewis Cotter died early Tuesday after being shot inside the home she shared with her husband.

The Messenger-Inquirer reports she was employed in Daviess County as a guidance counselor at College View Middle School and also worked as a dance instructor for Henderson County Public Schools.

Henderson Police Sgt. John Nevels said her husband, Steven Cotter, who serves as a soccer coach for Henderson County Public Schools, was injured when police took him into custody. He said Steven Cotter has not been arrested.

26 students honored for ACT scores

NFW FRA FDITOR

Twenty-six high school students who scored a 28 or higher on the ACT were honored Monday during a reception at the James E. Bruce Convention Center.

Christian County Chamber of Commerce President Carter Hendricks and Superintendent Brady Link served as the keynote speakers. We have many celebrations," Link told the students. "We celebrate our band, and they certainly deserve it. We celebrate our athletes, and they deserve it. But to me, this one is the most important because it recognizes what we're all about, and that's improving student performance. ... We are very proud of your academic achievement." The students — and their teachers

- were the guests of honor. The students were awarded plaques to commemorate their achievement; the teachers, one per student, were given a smaller token of gratitude to recognize their efforts. Students who earned a 28 or greater on the ACT were: (Hopkinsville) Rachel Bailey, Jerry Butler, Hunter Carter, Jordan Cost, Barrett Latham, Clinton Lincoln, Megan Ridenour. Abel Rodriguez, Amy Shel-

Louisville councilwoman fires felon grandson

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) A Louisville Metro councilwoman says she has fired her grandson, a convicted felon who has had multiple arrests while working for her. The Courier-Journal reports that Councilwoman Barbara Shanklin announced Tuesday she had fired Gary Bohler as legislative aide in her office. Gary Bohler had worked for Democratic Councilwoman Barbara Shanklin's office since 2003. He made $25 an hour in the part-time position. The newspaper reports Bohler has faced about 30 charges since being hired to work for the city, including an arrest on May 5 alleging domestic violence. He was placed on unpaid leave last week after the newspaper began asking questions about his arrests.

The newspaper has reported that Bohler has been arrested several times while employed with the city and was paid at least once while he was in jail last year by claiming compensatory time. The newspaper said he was also paid while he was a fugitive, including for more than a year after a warrant was issued in Shelby County in January 2004 until it was recalled in July 2005. Before announcing the firing, Shanklin said she hadn't given her grandson special treatment by allowing him to keep his job.

"I don't believe I've done any more for Gary than I would for any other person in my district," Shanklin said. "I work with ex-offenders. I'm constantly trying to (help) people get their lives back together."

Meanwhile, prosecutors say they will ask a judge to send Bohler to prison because of repeated arrests while on probation.

Sullivan, Maureen Bohler's attorney in several cases, told the newspaper that her client is getting a "bum rap" and criminal "looks worse than it is."

For example, she said 2005 felony drug charges were dismissed and a 2011 case involved drugs found in a storage shed that belonged to a family member even though it was in his name.

SUICIDE: Post to put mental health experts in brigades

"I had a gold star mother who lost her son to suicide say, 'People don't commit suicide. They die of suicide," Gen. McConville said. "And if you believe that, then what really becomes key is that they get prevention early on.

Another goal for the embedded behavioral health model is removing the stigma attached to seeking help for mental health issues. Treatment for psychological injuries is just as necessary as treatment for physical injuries,

Maj. Daniel Manley, an engineer for the 4th Brigade Combat Team, said that one of the mental health offices would be stationed in an area between the gym, the barracks and the dining facility. The mental health staff will be living and working, even eating with the soldiers of the 4th brigade. Knowing the staff may put the soldiers at ease and remove any negative connotations attached to speaking with them.

"It incorporates them right into the brigade footprint," Maj. Manley said. can go to it during any time of the day when they feel like they might want to talk or let off some stress or get some help."

Ultimately, the goal for this model is to encourage soldiers to be more proactive about their mental health.

"We're committed to (making) our soldiers both physically and mentally strong," McConville said. "And we think this is a good way to do it.'

ARMY: Jobs in combat battalions open to women

War and they have done phenomenal work and continue to do so today," he said. "There is great talent and now we can have it in the headquarters of infantry, armor and cavalry."

Under the new policy, female officers and non-commissioned officers will be assigned to combat units below the brigade level. The change will open up about 14,000 new jobs for women in the military, but there are still more than 250,000 jobs that remain closed to women.

The new jobs within combat battalions are in personnel, intelligence, logistics, signal corps, medical and chaplaincy. The Army is also opening jobs that were once chanics for tanks and artillery and rocket launcher crew members.

The 4th Brigade draws its lineage from the 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment, whose World War II heroics led to books and a TV miniseries called the "Band of Brothers." But these days, Keaveny said there are more than 350 women already serving in the brigade and they will be opening 36 new jobs to women in the battalions.

"For the last 10 years, we have been fighting alongside women. In my experience I have seen that the Band of Brothers quickly integrate their sisters and they are a family," he said.

Capt. Elizabeth Evans, a 44-year-old mother of five, is one of the first women as signed to the combat battalions. She will be serving as a battalion S1, whose job is to oversee personnel issues within the battalion, including awards, casualties, human resources and other administrative responsibilities. She said there is a lot of pride associated with serving in an infantry unit.

"I think there's a rich history in the 101st and especially the 4th Brigade Combat Team," she said. "To me that means something. It means something to be a part of not necessarily history, but to be a part of a once all-male battalion.

deployed Afghanistan, noted that women have been serving in dangerous jobs in Iraq and Afghanistan for 10 years.

With the fluidity of the battlefield and how there are no front lines, it just makes more sense to me to allow women to come into those roles, those noncombat staff roles," she said. Keaveny said these changes will have minimum impact on where women will be located while deployed. Battalion headquarters are generally located at bases where women were already stationed and the Army has been using female engagement teams to reach out to civilians in re-

Kayla Williams, author of "Love My Rifle More Than You: Young and Female in the US Army," served with the 3rd Brigade Combat Team under the 101st Airborne Division during the initial invasion into Iraq as an enlisted soldier in military intelligence.

Early in the war, she wasn't even issued plates for her ballistic vest "because fe-males can't serve in combat," she said. She said once she was temporarily attached to an infantry battalion at Fort Campbell that had no female latrines. As an Arabic translator, she was attached to infantry units rather than assigned, but doing the same things as her male infantry counterparts, including going on foot patrols and living in remote

"Women have been serving in very forward deployed roles, and women have been serving side-by-side with combat arms personnel, just not in a formalized assigned method," said Williams, who is a fellow at the Truman National Security Project. She said these incremental changes could improve the professional development of both men and women in the military, but acknowledged that the military still has a long way to go to leveling the field for women.

Engineers will now begin installing reinforcing steel and forms so a concrete deck can be poured on the structure in the next 12 days, according to a news release from the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

The bridge has been closed since Jan. 26 when an 8,200-ton cargo ship crashed into it and took out a large section of the bridge.

Contracting of Hall Louisville was awarded a $7 million emergency contract to replace the span by Memorial Day, May 28. The company faces a $50,000 penalty per day for missing the deadline.

Keith Todd, spokesman for the KYTC, said it will probably be a week before they know if the repairs will be complete before the company's deadline. He said the contractor hasn't indicated there will be any delays and is optimistic workers can finish the project in time.

"I think these guys are going to work 24-7 for them to get it done," Todd said.

Former northern Kentucky schoolteacher faces sex count

FORT THOMAS, Ky. (AP) — A former northern Kentucky schoolteacher has been indicted on a charge of having sex with a student.

The Kentucky Enquirer reported 33-yearold Andrea Conners was released on a $5,000 bond after being indicted on Thursday. She is charged with a single count of first-degree sexual abuse, which is a felony punishable by up to five years in prison.

Connors formerly taught at Highlands High School in the Fort Thomas Independent Schools district.

Connors' attorney, Rob Dziech, said the case will be hard for everyone. The alleged victim is a male youth who attends the school.

Council recognizes first, only high school law club

NEW ERA STAFF WRITER

The Hopkinsville City Council recognized the Hopkinsville High School Law Club at its meeting on Tuesday.

Mayor Dan Kemp said that Kentucky Supreme Court Justice Bill Cunningham came up with the idea, but the local Fraternal Order of Police set it in motion. Henry Gould, president of the Hopkinsville Kemp branch of the FOP, said the goal for the club is to encourage young people to get involved in the law enforcement community. Gould hopes that, by being involved in the club, children will avoid getting into trouble.

Joe Parrino, a Hopkinsville High School teacher and faculty moderator for the club, was also key in the club's formation. The law club is the first and only club of its kind in Kentucky, Parrino said, and he had no model to follow when he helped start the club. However, support from the school and the community made the club a reality.

Kemp awarded seven of the 25 members of the club certificates of appreciation as charter members. Nine members and their families attended the meeting.

During public comments, Harry Allen requested the city consider constructing sidewalks near his home by Holiday Elementary School. He said that he wakes up every morning and notices children walking to school in the middle of the road. Allen fears that one day someone will be injured or killed on the way to school.

Councilwoman Ann Cherry echoed the same sentiments. She said that, during her two terms on city council, she has advocated for building sidewalks on LaFayette Road.

Kemp said that the city applied for and received federal grant money in the past to fund safe paths to school. He said the council has applied for grant money every year since then, but has not received any more funding. The city will continue

State inspection nears for die-casting property

BY DENNIS O'NEIL NEW FRA STAFF WRITER

ELKTON, Ky. — Elkton City Council ap-

Elkton Mayor Nancy Camp said that when copper prices went up a few years ago, vandals started pulling copper wire off the building, releasing asbestos into its interior. Raybold Environmental recently removed the asbestos. Camp said a state inspection of the building is near and the city needs to seal 54 vents on the building so birds can't fly into them. The city received a quote of $6,000 for the job from local contractor Ronnie Greenfield.

The council authorized Camp to look for more quotes on the project. If the city can't find one lower than Greenfield's, he will get the job, she

All three are being held at Christian County Jail on $25,000 bonds. They all face charges of complicity to manufacturing meth, possession of meth and possession of drug paraphernalia. Tracey Wagner also faces a charge of trafficking in meth, according to the release.

Man accused of sexually abusing 12-year-old girl

A 12-year-old girl let an acquaintance into her bed early Monday morning, according to a Hopkinsville police report.

The girl let the man in through her window between midnight and 2 a.m. after talking to him on the phone, police said. The two then got in bed together, according to the report. The suspect's information is redacted from the report. He is charged with first-degree sexual abuse

31-year-old man arrested for alleged sexual assault

Mark Oiler, Jr., 31, was arrested Friday on one count of first-degree sexual assault and four counts of first-degree sodomy.

According to a report from the Cadiz Police Department, the charges stem from a Kentucky State Police investigation.

Oiler's bond was set at $25,000.

Kentucky same-sex couple, school at odds over prom sex couple and a Roman Catholic high school are at odds over whether the teenagers should have been allowed to go to the prom together. Lexington Catholic High School senior Hope Decker and sophomore Tiffany Wright had already gotten their dresses for the dance, but were told Friday afternoon by school administrators that they couldn't attend. Wright, 16, told the Lexington Herald-Leader that school administrators cited the Catholic Church's stance on same-sex relationships.

"I would understand and respect the school's decision if they truly upheld church teachings," Wright said. 'They didn't forbid the entrance of all the couples who've had premarital sex and all the kids who planned to get drunk after the prom.

Lexington Catholic president Steve Angelucci said the school's policies and procedures reflect the church's teachings on the issue.

"As a Catholic high school, we uphold every teaching of the Catholic Church," Angelucci said.

The Diocese of Lexington issued a statement Monday supporting the school administrators' decision and also said it was consistent with the church's teachings.

'The Church empathizes with those who struggle with same-sex attraction, but, at the same time, the Church and its institutions, like Lexington Catholic, cannot condone or promote actions which normalize homosexual tendencies," the statement said. "This in no way detracts from the value and dignity of the students involved. In light of Catholic teaching, the actions of the Lexington Catholic High School administration were a corrective invitation to the students involved to embrace their truest human dignity as children of God.

Smoke ban exceptions cloud good ordinance

At Thursday's Committee of the Whole meeting, Hopkinsville City Council will have its first formal discussion of Mayor Dan Kemp's proposal to prohibit smoking inside most public buildings.

The meeting at the Lackey Municipal Building will occur at one of the public places where smoking is not allowed. If this meeting occurred in a room where smoking had not already been banned, many people who have important business with the city might be forced to inhale

would include city employees who are required to be at the meeting. However, because of the no-smoking policy inside city hall, those employees and others at council meetings are protected from secondhand smoke that can make them ill.

Unfortunately, many people who work in other places in Hopkinsville do not have the same protections. In some restaurants, bars, convenience stores, offices and clubs, workers and non-smoking customers do not have the same protections.

One could make a good argument that patrons can choose to do business in another place if they don't want to inhale another person's cigarette smoke. But some workers have to choose between a paycheck and their health.

There appears to be overwhelming support for the smoking ban. The public is on the right side of this issue. That should guide the decision of council

But council members should also look carefully at the exceptions in the ordinance that would allow indoor smoking to continue in some public places. We believe the exceptions weaken the ordinance.

Council members should eliminate the exceptions for private clubs, tobacco stores, tobacco warehouses and theatrical productions. In all of these places, employees will be forced to inhale secondhand smoke.

Kemp said Wednesday he is revising the exception for private clubs to ensure that smoking is not allowed when those facilities are open for public events, such as bingo at the Eagles Club. The mayor's revision addresses a weakness in the ordinance but it doesn't go far enough.

There should be no debate about the scientific evidence. Tobacco smoke makes people ill. It causes cancer and other fatal diseases.

At Thursday's meeting, council members should not waste good air trying to argue around scientific evidence that proves tobacco harms smokers and nonsmokers. Forward the smoking ban to the next council meeting for a vote. Remove the exceptions to the ban and pass it.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Animal control's concern lacking for dogs left outside in heat

The Editor, New Era, I just want to let people know that if you are thinking about calling Animal Control for help, don't bother. Thev don't care.

About two weeks ago, my friend and I were driving on Academy Drive around noon when we noticed two little dogs, a Chihuahua and a Yorkie terrier, tied out in a backyard with no water and no shade. It was a bright, sunny day. The temperature was 81, according to the time and temperature sign at the bank, but we had been out all morning and it felt hotter. Around 2 p.m., we came back by and the little dogs were still out; still no water, no shade. This time they were panting and barking frantically, obviously in distress. My friend called 911 on her cellphone, told the dispatcher what was going on, and the lady said she would get someone right out there.

We parked in the church parking lot, which is right across the street from where the dogs were and waited. Twenty-five minutes later a man from Animal Control finally showed up. My friend flagged him down to explain the situation. He told her he didn't see anything wrong with them being out there this time of year. What? Are you kidding me? The time of year doesn't have anything to do with it. It's the temperature that matters. Those little dogs had been in the bright sun for more than two and a half hours with no water or shade.

He finally said he would go talk to the owner, but I think the only reason he did was because we were

We called for help and this is what we got — a man that didn't care. My friend called the Animal Control office, told the lady what happened, and the lady said she would have the supervisor call my friend back. No one ever called back.

I have since been by the house several times, and the little dogs are still being tied out in the yard. It's obvious no one cares about them but my fried and me.

God help all the animals that need it because the people at Animal Control, that are getting paid to help, won't because they don't care

Tree trimming shows poor care for appearance of community

The Editor, New Era, Where has the "Pride" gone? It truly upsets me to see the kind of work that our city puts into its upkeep. The work that was recently done on Cox Mill Road was really sad. It appears as if a tornado ripped through that area. The trees are mangled and open to disease. The road to Bravard Winery and Lovell's Orchards is all the same.

The whole job states to visitors that the people here are lazy and uncaring about preserving or enhancing the natural beauty of this county. There has got to be a better way of trimming than taking a lawn mower to the trees. Why would anyone want to live here if our work displays a personality of apathy?

In 1955, American author and critic James Agee died in New York at age 45.

Ten years ago: Congressional Democrats demanded to be told what President George W. Bush knew about terrorist threats before Sept. 11 as the White House and its GOP allies defended the president for not disclosing intelligence that Osama bin Laden wanted to hijack

Five years ago: Anti-war Democrats in the Senate failed in an attempt to cut off funds for the Iraq war. Britain's army reversed course and announced that Prince Harry would not be sent to Iraq with his regiment due to "specific threats" from insurgents. (The prince did end up serving in Afghanistan for 10 weeks, until word of his deployment got out.) One year ago: A judge in New York refused to release on bail the chief of the International Monetary Fund, Dominique Strauss-Kahn, who was accused of trying to rape a hotel maid. The Vatican told bishops around the world it was important to cooperate with police in reporting priests who'd raped and molested children and asked them to develop guidelines for preventing sex abuse.

Fast-food lane leads straight to shorter life lose your eyes and picture 110 million obese people waddling around America's sidewalks. You'll probably want to keep your eyes closed.

Such is the scenario suggested by a new study projecting that 42 percent of American adults will be obese by 2030. That's 32 million more than today's 78 million. Of course, they probably won't be waddling. They'll be in their cars in the fast-food lane, as they are now. Recall that independent filmmaker Morgan Spurlock ("Super Size Me") gained 24.5 pounds after one month of eating exclusively at McDonald's.

Something no less than a "major public health intervention" is needed, according to Eric Finkelstein, a health economist with the Duke University Global Health Institute and lead author of the study.

What this means is anyone's guess, but it isn't far-fetched to infer that a government-mandated health care system eventually would necessitate a government-mandated diet to control costs. In another study, Finkelstein and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimated that obesity costs about $147 billion per year, accounting for about 9 percent of all medical expenses. An obese person, defined as carrying an extra 30 pounds, costs about $1,400 more in medical expenses per year than a person of healthy weight.

No one wants to make overweight people feel worse than they do. Fat is indeed a plague and most of us struggle to varying degrees. There are about 12 KATHLEEN renegade pounds out there that love me so much they never want to be far away.

If I drop my guard for so much as a month (that is, eat like a normal person), they jump on me like a June tick.

At this point, we make the necessary disclaimer that some people are blessed with hummingbird metabolisms (and we hate them), and others are genetically inclined toward fatness. Genetic inclination isn't a life sentence, however, and personal responsibility can't be excluded as contributing to most fatty outcomes. These days, responsibility isn't only about pushing away from the table, but it means educating oneself, reading food labels, and going to a little extra trouble.

Getting fat has never been easier, of course. Food is plentiful and convenient, and the bad stuff is tasty and cheap. At the end of long day, it's easier to buy a Happy Meal than to shop and prepare a balanced dinner. And who wants to hear the little darlings protest when presented with cauliflower over calzone? Out of sheer exhaustion, we fool ourselves into thinking children should have a say in what they eat. And, neverminding all the studies, diets, consultants and excuses, we know that the mystery of non-medical obesity isn't really so mysterious. In a word, it's about sugar, including hidden sugars such as high-fructose corn syrup (HFCS), a liquid sweetener that seems to be in nearly everything. Because it is six times sweeter than cane sugar, HFCS is cheaper to use and also has preservative, as well as fattening, attributes.

A 2010 Princeton University study found that rats that drank HFCS gained considerably more weight than rats eating sugar, though their caloric intake was the same. On average, Americans consume about 60 pounds of HFCS per person per year, according to the study.

Here's the simple explanation: Refined or simple sugars and their cousins high-glycemic carbohydrates (think white bread and potatoes) — cause the pancreas to produce high levels of insulin, which cause the body to store excess sugar not used for energy as fat. The liver in turn is induced to produce cholesterol.

We love high-glycemic carbs because they make us feel good by spiking our blood sugar. But what goes up must come down — with a thud. When our blood sugar inevitably plunges, we feel tired, ornerv and hungry — and we repeat the cycle.

Low-glycemic foods (think apples and collard greens), on the other hand, release energy at a steady, less-dramatic rate, and our blood sugar stays reasonably level. Less sugar means less insulin means less fat means leaner bodies means better health.

Oh sure, eating with such attention to the glycemic index ruins your life. You won't have any friends. You'll spend all your time alone weighing four-ounce cuts of fat-free meat, sautéing spinach and picking flaxseed out of your teeth - and your children will hate you — but you'll be thin. Best of all, you won't need to go to the doctor as often, or rely on federal food marshals to tell you what to eat.

Ex-UK player faces sex charges

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Former University of Kentucky basketball player Michael Porter has been charged with sexual abuse, accused of having sexual encounters with a teenage girl. Lexington Herald The Leader reported Tuesthat docucourt said Porter, who played for Kentucky from 2006-09, met the girl a Porter function.

Porter, 25, is charged with six counts of third-degree sodomy and two counts of first-degree sexual abuse. The former Wildcat pleaded not guilty on Tuesday.

According to the Lexington Herald Leader, Porter was arrested about 1:45

Lexington police spokeswoman Sherelle Roberts told the Herald-Leader that the accuser is a girl and the alleged sex acts took place when she was 14 and 15. The police reports say the acts took place from August 2009. about five months before Porter announced he was quitting the Kentucky basketball team, to December

The Lexington paper said Porter met the girl whle he was a group leader at a church function.

Porter was taken to the rayette County Detention Center and was held on $22,000 bond. Court records said Max Appel paid $25 and signed for Porter, who has to wear an ankle monitor and may not have contact with the accuser.

Porter is scheduled to return to court for a preliminary hearing on June 4.

Hoptown's Soldo chooses academic offer to Murray St.

BY JOE WILSON NEW ERA SPORTS EDITOR

Surrounded by loved ones, coaches. friends and teammates, Hopkinsville High School basketball star Christy Soldo sat behind a table and smiled.

In one of the worst kept secrets in history, Soldo and her entourage gathered in the high school library on Monday afternoon to announce she would play basketball at Murray State University but would attend the school on a Presidential Scholar-

Nearly everyone had something to say, except Soldo, who never said a word in the news conference, choosing to take in the whole experience.

Actually, had it been up to Soldo, who has made the Kentucky All-Star team after leading the Lady Tigers to their first Region 2 championship in 2012, she would have quietly passed through tonight's graduation ceremony without another word about basketball.

But school officials felt the Lady Tigers' all-time leading scorer deserved the recognition, especially after passing up an academic scholarship to accept the academic award.

"I just thought if I get hurt, would it (athletic scholarship) still pay or if I decide later I don't want would I still have

that money," said

Soldo after the ceremony. "Also, by me taking the aca-

play,

scholar-

demic ship, they (Racers) can give my athletic scholarship to somebody else who needs it "And when you get picked by the dean of the school for this scholarship, that's a big honor," she added. Soldo, who has a 4.0 GPA, averaged nearly 19 points and nine rebounds last season. She was chosen the Region 2 Female Athlete of the Year and also the Region 2 Female Basketball Player of the Year.

Former Hoptown coach Tonya Wells, who resigned earlier this month, said she expected Soldo to excel on the basketball floor and in the classroom at Murray.

"The first time I saw Christy play in the sixth and seventh grade I knew if she came to Hoptown we had a good chance to do some exciting things here," Wells said. "I expect her to go to Murray and do the same thing. They are getting a great basketball player and student."

Soldo said she is focused on the experience of playing in the Kentucky-Indiana All-Star game and thinks that will give her a good indication of what the college game will be like.

"I'm not really nervous, I'm just anxious because I don't know what to expect," she said. "It's a great opportunity and I just want to enjoy it and have fun.

Calloway County turns back HHS

FROM NEW ERA STAFF REPORTS

Hopkinsville saw its two-game winning streak come to an end Tuesday night, as host Calloway County defeated the Tigers 6-1 in a high school baseball game. Calloway scored four times in the bottom of the third and that was more than enough support for winning pitcher Dylan Dwyer, who struck out 15 in six innings. Dwyer also limited Hoptown to only three hits.

Rashad Lewis, Matt Stevenson and Gant Unfried all had a single for the Tigers (15-13). Hopkinsville scored its only run in the top of the third.

Keaton Scruggs suffered the pitching loss for the Tigers. He gave up nine hits and struck out two while walking three in 42/3 innings.

HCA's Mullen signs with Mid-Continent

BY KEITH JENKINS NEW ERA ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

Heritage Christian Academy's purpose is to provide an "academically challenging Christ-centered education," according to the school's website.

When it came time for HCA volleyball standout Morganne Mullen to decide where to further her playing career, she knew she wanted to attend a college with the same mission.

"I had actually looked at Murray (State University), but I knew that and I had heard from rumors that it was one of the top party schools," Mullen said. "I don't want to be a part of that. I'm trying to stay away from that kind of stuff. I want to make sure that volleyball is my passion.'

After much consideration, Mullen elected to join head coach Brittany Nicley at Mid-Continent University in Mayfield. The 5-foot-4 senior signed with the Cougars during a ceremony Monday at HCA.

"I'm nervous," Mullen admitted. "But I'm also very ecstatic that I'm going to be actually playing for Mid-Continent. I'm going to be an official Cougar.

Mullen, who helped lead the Lady Warriors to back-to-back Kentucky Christian Athletic Association state championships in 2010 and 2011, said it was Mid-Continent's size and Christ-centered education that made it an easy choice. "The fact that it's a smaller school," Mullen said on her decision to head to Mayfield. "They have Bible studies, they have chapels, and it's pretty much like Heritage (Christian Academy), and Heritage is my home. It's very comforting. Mullen joins former HCA teammate

Taylor Davey on the Cougars, who ralson after an 0-10 start.

Nicley, who is entering her fourth year at the helm of the Mid-Continent program, said Davey was pivotal in the recruitment of Mullen, who began her career at Todd County Central High

"Let's just say I had Taylor around and available anywhere that might be,' Nicley said. "I'm excited for this relationship that we're building with Heritage Christian. It sounds like a great school, great atmosphere. I'm very excited for the both of them to be at Mid-Continent. They're great girls.

Nicley said it was Mullen's attitude that made her most attractive to the Mid-Continent coaching staff, but said it was her skill set, particularly on defense, that will allow her to compete for playing time right away.

"Her defense is very sharp," Nicley said of Mullen. "Her height definitely won't let her play on the front row. She'll definitely play back row for us on defense. But she definitely solved the hitters well. She read the defense well she read the hitter well. I think she'll come in and be a huge factor for us. We'll just keep pushing her to build on her strengths and keep getting a little bit quicker and a little bit faster.

University Heights Academy and former HCA volleyball coach Keith Sage, Christian County coach Rick Erickson and current HCA coach Eldridge Rogers were all in attendance for Mullen's signing. She credited each coach for helping her develop her game.

"Coach Sage was actually my first coach for volleyball," she said. "He actually got me started. He's the very first person that taught me how to pass a volleyball, because I couldn't chew gum and walk at the same time.

Eldridge coached Mullen for one season at HCA, while Erickson mentored his summer volleyball program, Court Nicley said Mullen's ability to communicate is another strength of the former Heritage Christian MVP. Mullen said she hopes to use those skills both on and off the court as she pursues a degree in sports psychology.

"I want to give athletes motivation for games," Mullen said. "Or if they're down on themselves, I want to give them motivation to keep playing.

UHA's Mack signs with Transylvania

BY JOE WILSON

The most prolific goal scorer in University Heights Academy Lady Blazer history announced Monday she will be taking her skills to the college level.

Eden Mack, who scored a school-record 101 goals in four seasons at UHA, signed a letter with Transylvania University in Lexington.

"I liked that the campus was small and I got a chance to meet the players and they seemed nice and got along good," said Mack, who chose Transv over Brescia.

Soccer wasn't always Mack's first sport. She began playing YMCA soccer as a youngster but quit to focus on gymnastics. She returned to the soccer pitch when her friends convinced her to play in the eighth grade.

"They told me that with my speed it would be a good sport for me to play so I went out for it and just liked it," Mack said.

Her speed helped her become one of the top players in western Kentucky the last few years. Her high school coach, Tony Kirves, said her skills should help her in college.

"I'm just really proud of her," he said. "She is an awesome athlete and I'm

CAPPUCCINO SNAP SHAKE

FROM RELISH MAGAZINE

Here's a smooth and delicious way to get you morning coffee buzz — in a smoothie.

Ingredients

Instructions

1 cup strong brewed regular or decaffeinated coffee, cooled

1 cup 2-percent soy, rice or oat milk 1/2 cup vanilla or coffee frozen yogurt 5 ice cubes, crushed or 1/2 to 3/4 cup

1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1 tablespoon unsweetened cocoa, optional

1 tablespoon creamy peanut butter

In a food processor fitted with the metal blade or a blender, puree all ingredients until smooth.

APSU cooking class prepares lunch for military spouses

BY DAVID SNOW FOR THE NEW ERA

A luncheon honoring military spouses was Thursday at Valor Hall featuring dishes prepared by students in the culinary program run by renowned chef Wendell Hensley of Austin Peay State University.

The luncheon was a part of Military Spouse Appreciation Week, which was May 7-11 as part of the Christian County Chamber of Commerce Military Affairs Committee's celebration during Military Appreciation Month.

MAC director Kensley McLellan hosted the luncheon, saying this was a way for the Military Affairs Committee to give back to the spouses of the soldiers.

Hensley serves as the program coordinator for the APSU culinary school, and he brought some of his students to gain hands-on experience in preparing and serving quality meals.

"We started out with a cold soup," Hensley said. "We've got an apple squash soup, and then we're going to go to a smoked chicken breast with a barley-quinoa risotto in a garden vegetable blend. Then, we've got a little pastry, a peach and blueberry puff pastry dessert with a cinnamon cream on top."

Hensley said that he had served in the military and thought that being a chef would be a great job, so he studied the culinary arts and, after serving 25 years in the military, he began teaching it in "All of my students are doing the food (at the luncheon)," he said. "They came in this morning and did it, and they're going to clean it up. I think they do a wonderful job."

Books offer a look at Nelson Mandela's life through food

AP FOOD EDITOR

What do you feed a man who spent decades eating prison food in the name of freedom and reconciliation?

It was an intimidating question Xoliswa Ñdoyiya wasn't sure she knew how to answer. It was about 20 years ago and at the time she was just a young cook working at a Jewish retirehome Johannesburg, South Africa. But a friend had South urged her to apply for the job as Nelson Mandela's personal chef.

So she did. And when he met her, he immediately put her at ease. "I believe that you are a great cook, but can you cook our food?" Ndoyiya recalled being asked by Mandela, who had only recently been released from prison. It was a reference to the Xhosa foods Mandela had grown up eating, simple dishes rich with porridge-like maize, beans and vegetables.

Ndoyiya said she smiled. Yes, she knew ukutya kwasekhaya, the term South Africa's Xhosa clan uses to describe comfort food.

"That was the end of the interview. I was hired," she said in a recent telephone interview. She has been with him ever since. And now she is sharing the home cooking Mandela loves in a cookbook, "Ukutya Kwasekhaya: Tastes from Nelson Mandela's Kitchen" (Real African Publishers), one of two recent books to use food as a fresh way to recount Mandela's life from anti-apartheid fighter to prisoner to president to retired statesman.

Tata (a South African term of affection used for Mandela) gets sad if days go by and I haven't umngqusho," cooked Ndoyiya writes in the book. Both books previously had been published in South Africa, but just now have been released in the U.S.

Trapido, a chef and food writer, also wrote her own book, "Hunger for Freedom" (Jacana Media), a more academic account of the role food has played throughout Mandela's life, from his childhood and years in prison, to during and after his time as South Africa's first black presi-

Indiana ties series

MIAMI — This does not sound like a winning formula. Miss 24 of 29 shots in one stretch, on the road. Watch an 11-point second-half lead turn into a deficit. Have your entire team get outscored by two players in the fourth quarter.

Somehow, it worked for the Indi-

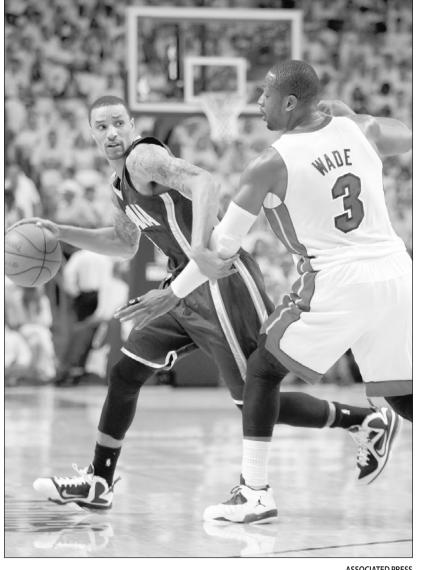

And with one part of the Big Three gone, the Miami Heat might have a very big problem.

David West scored 16 points and grabbed 10 rebounds and the Pacers took home-court advantage away from Miami by beating the Heat 78-75 in Game 2 of the teams Eastern Conference semifinal series Tuesday night — after LeBron James and Dwyane Wade both came up short on key opportunities in the final minute.

"Defense and rebounding," Indiana coach Frank Vogel said. "We built this team, we started talking about smash-mouth basketball about winning the war in the trenches, and that's with defense and rebounding. That's what I grew up watching Eastern Conference basketball being like. We understand offense is going to come and go, especially like a great defensive team like these guys ... but we're pretty good too.

The series is tied at 1-1, with Game 3 in Indianapolis on Thursday night. James scored 28 points for Miami and Wade finished with 24, though both failed to convert big chances late. James missed two free throws with 54.3 seconds left and Miami down one, and Wade was short on a layup that would have tied the game with 16 seconds remaining. Moments later, a few of the Pacers were leaping in celebration at midcourt of Miami's floor, something that Wade said was noticed afterward. "The game is not lost or won with two free throws," James said.

Indiana Pacers guard George Hill (left) looks for an opening past Miami Heat guard Dwyane Wade during the first half of Game 2 of their NBA Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series

"But I definitely want to come through for my teammates. So I'll get an opportunity again. I know I'll be at the line again in that situation. Just go up and make 'em."

Miami was without Chris Bosh, who's sidelined indefinitely — almost certainly the rest of the series, possibly longer if the Heat advance — after he strained a lower abdominal muscle in Game 1.

His absence was noted in many ways. Miami shot 35 percent, got outrebounded 50-40 and besides James and Wade, no other Heat player scored more than five points. After Wade's missed layup that would have tied the game, he remained on the court for a few extra seconds, looking exhausted until James — who said Wade would make that shot "10 out of 10 times" — pulled him up. 'Chris was missed, no doubt about it," Wade said. "But that's not the reason we lost this ball game."

The Heat were outscored 28-14 in the third quarter, shooting 3 for 17 in that period. They didn't score in the final 2:41, and when Mario Chalmers missed a 3-pointer that would have tied it on the last play, Miami dropped to 1 for 16 from 3-point range on the night, 1 for 22 in the series.

"Welcome to the playoffs, for us," Heat coach Erik Spoelstra said. "That's how we're viewing it. This series has started. They won on our home court. Now we have to collect ourselves, gather ourselves and get ready for Game 3. That's all that matters right now.'
